

IMPRESSIONS: 1,069,148

The 8 Best Winter Weekend Getaways from NYC

For when you want to cozy up in a cabin and warm up by the fire.

Mark Ellwood | December 11, 2020

<https://www.cntraveler.com/gallery/best-winter-weekend-getaways-from-nyc>

If you're craving a change of scenery this winter, but not keen to roam too far from New York City, don't worry—there's a raft of appealing spots for the weekend just a short drive, bus or train ride away. Whether you want to cozy up in a cabin and enjoy some Danish-style hygge, slalom down a mountainside through bracing winter air, or relish the seclusion of a seaside resort out of season, we've got you covered.

Just one reminder: Remember to check intra-state COVID-19 travel protocols if you're venturing outside New York State this winter, and check the tourism websites of the respective state for updates before you book or travel.

THE BERKSHIRES, MASSACHUSETTS

How to get there

The most picturesque route for the three-hour-or-so drive up to Western Massachusetts is via the Taconic Parkway, which slices through the eastern edge of New York before you turn and head just across state lines into the Berkshires. The prettiest pitstop en route is Milan, the anchor of horse country here; have lunch at Cider Bros. Roadhouse, owned by an alum of the CIA in Hyde Park nearby, known for upscale comfort food. Or, book a riding lesson; Hidden Hollow Farm is a non-profit here that offers them to people with and without disabilities.

What to do

Though the area might be fairly famous for its superb leaf-peeping each fall, it's arguably even better once the snow starts and the hills morph into some of the best ski slopes in Massachusetts. Take the huge range of terrain at Catamount, ideal for families of varying abilities; there's also a two-hour zipline tour that includes the adrenalin-pumping CataMonster line, an unbroken, 1,000-foot drop. Butternut Basin is another family-friendly, must-ski hub that offers private family lessons for kids ages four and up, while there are 45 different runs at Jiminy Peak in the Taconic Mountains. Otherwise, there are 13 miles of cross-country ski trails at Canterbury Farm, as well as the chance to skate safely, outdoors, on Farm Pond.

Where to stay

The newest of the ultra-luxe wellness retreats, Miraval (from $1,198 per night) just opened its third property near Lenox: the sprawling campus is anchored by an enormous spa, of course, but the food is another lure: the all-inclusive rates allow you to graze its mindful eating menu on a whim, whether made-to-order smoothies at breakfast, or roasted heirloom carrots and pie made from local apples at suppertime. A quirkiest option nearby is 33 Main, an eight-room inn owned and operated by homeware designer Annie Selke, who grew up nearby. Cannily, she intended it to be as much showroom as hotel—most elements of each room are available for purchase to take home with you.

BULLFROG + BAUM

BULLFROG + BAUM